Communities of Interest (COI)

The Marine Corps established the Community of Interest (COI) program to enhance civilian careers. The Deputy Commandant for Manpower and Reserve Affairs (DC, M&RA) is responsible for management of the COI program. COIs are aligned by civilian occupational series grouped along functional lines as reflected below. Each COI has a Community Leader, routinely from the Senior Executive Service, and a senior community member designated as the Community Manager. To find out more about the Marine Corps' Community of Interest program read MCO 12410.25.

MARADMIN 013/16 announced the COI Civilian Marine Foundational Skills Training Program (FSTP). The COI Leaders determined that every Civilian Marine has a need for certain foundational skills that support the Marine Corps' mission. To develop these skills, COI Leaders have designed the FSTP to provide foundational training opportunities for each Civilian Marine. The program focuses on developing skills in the following foundational categories

- Communication
- Project Management
- Information Technology
- Business Functions
- Personal/Professional
- Management Skills

The COI Leaders are currently using the commercial online training site Lynda.com as a primary training resource for delivering courses that will develop these skills. Each COI has a limited number of accounts that they can issue to their community members.
